

Introduction

WebcastConsumer allows participants of your webcast to view a livestream and, if chat is enabled, interact with the presenter by asking questions and offering comments. These livestreams can take the form of conferences, e-learning sessions, or investor relations presentations, among many others. You can stream live, or offer it on-demand for your audience.

The following documentation contains an overview of the WebcastConsumer - the component for viewers of webcasts.

WebcastConsumer can be configured in several different ways. This means the examples in the following user guide may differ in appearance or function from your webcast because of individual settings.
